Lucknow: Deloitte scooped away the cream of Indian Institute of Management, Lucknow by hiring highest number of students, 18, the maximum in a batch of 436, and rolling out double-digit salary packages. Last year too, the consulting firm made 18 offers but was the second largest recruiter after Flipkart. E-commerce giant, Amazon took to second slot with 17 offers followed by Star TV recruiting 14 students.

The other companies to recruit high numbers include Barclays, HDFC bank, ADG, Accenture Management Consulting, DCG, Snapdeal, Reliance Industries, Seemang, McKinsey, ICFM and Cognizant Business Consulting. Snapdeal made its maiden visit to IIM-L this year.

Banking and finance sector made a comeback this session with Goldman Sachs making the maximum offers. As many as six private equity firms came to the campus and made

'Achchhe din' not visible in IIM-L, says JJ Irani

the.ia@timesgroup.com

Lucknow: The Prime Minister may have promised 'achchhe din' but unfortunately it's not seen on IIM-Lucknow campus, said Janshed J Irani, chairman of the board of governors of IIM Lucknow. Irani was addressing students at the 29th convocation of the B-School on Saturday.

"We have a director who is efficient, a great supporter of the cause, but he doesn't want to be a director or continue to be. And he is made to continue because the 'achchhe din', which the PM has promised, has not yet reached some of the ministries, hence the delay," said Irani.

"I think they (Union ministry of human resource development) will (take time) because Prof. Deyi Singh was at the helm of affairs for 17 years on this campus. When he retired in March last year, we expected a smooth changeover but it has not yet happened. So the 'achchhe din' — as far as we are concerned — are still in the future," said Irani.

Prof Singh retired on March 8. He was, however, given six months' extension after which the interim charge was given to the senior most professor, Rajiv Srivastava.

Irani said that there has been some progress in the last few days. "This may be the result of me-dropping hints that I will be addressing the convocation, and if the 'achchhe-din' do not appear on the horizon, I will be slightly more critical than usual," Irani said from the dais.

The good news, he said, is that the "sun is just rising across the horizon and the first few rays of sun light can be seen."

ARTISTIC SIDE | As the convocation ground swelled with people, sitting on chairs and standing on the sides, a sketch of film star Katrina Kaif made by a student caught the eye of many. It was one of the exhibits at the end of the ground, where visitors to the campus got to see art work of students. There were also posters and banners providing information about the various programmes, events, activities and extra-curricular paraphernalia of the institution.

UNTIED TIE | Time was nearing for students to get dressed in the robes and line up for the ceremony to begin. But John was stuck with his tie knot. Unable to work his way around it — he always had a tie knotted all year, but it untied on the convocation day. A fun-loving John sought his friend's help who took the tie, hung it around his neck and tied the knot in place.

LOVE FOR SELFIES | Selfies were the high point of the convocation ceremony. Even while standing for the group photo with the faculty, students were busy clicking selfies with their friends. Waiting in the sidelines, students were clicking selfies for social sharing and uploading.

STRANGE CONCEPT | In India, after marriage a boy has to shoulder financial responsibility while the girl has to start having babies. There is nothing wrong with it, said J J Irani but there is everything wrong in thinking that once you do that, you have lost opportunity to lead in life.

COLLAGE | It was a treat to the eyes to see a collage of graduating students being made in the form of a convocation robe. Students, parents stopped by, had a look and clicked photos of the collage made. "It's a different concept which caught our eyes as soon as we entered the academic block," said a parent.

Lucknow: When Kirti Saxena went up the stage amid the applauding crowd, the wheelchair she sat in became an inspiration for all. Kirti was among one of the 413 students who came out with flying colours at the IIM-L's convocation ceremony.

Eight months prior to joining IIM Lucknow, Kirti Saxena met with an unfortunate accident. A glow sign board fell up on her in her hometown in Madhya Pradesh, that left her spinal cord damaged. Even though the fracture was fixed, doctors said there was no cure for her impaired spine, advising her to join a rehabilitation centre in Delhi. After spending four months at the centre, civil engineering student Kirti, appeared for CAT, scheduled to be held a month later. With the percentile thereof, she got a call from 13 IIMs of which she chose Lucknow, her elder sister being in the city.

"My wounds were fresh, but being close to my sister my support system was intact. In my initial days, I faced a lot of infrastructural issues but the management understood. The night classes that went on till late were a struggle for me to attend, with my injury and problem. But it was my own struggle and determination to follow the schedule as regular as was possible and in the end here I am, even though on a wheelchair, I have fought and won over my condition," shared Kirti, who went up the stage amid loud applause from all present at the convocation.

Lucknow: Graduating students of IIM-L on Saturday shared their success mantra: Study hard and party harder.

Narain Bansal and Inderjit Kaur Brar— recipients of Chairman's Gold Medal and Director's Medal for PGP respectively— said nothing succeeded like success. "The two-year stay at IIM-L was immensely satisfying. It has transformed our life and turned us into problem solvers."

It was the institute's positive environment that helped students to interact with people coming from diverse places. Mridula Mukundan is a Karilite who came from Qatar to study management. "In two years, I have made friends among people of most other states. It was a very

Thunderous applause for accident survivor

HT Correspondent
 Lucknow

LUCKNOW Thunderous applause greeted Kirti Saxena as she collected her PGD diploma at the 29th convocation of the Indian Institute of Management, Lucknow.

Many admiring glances followed the gritty survivor of a near fatal accident, who defied her disability to stride her dreams, as her friends pushed her wheelchair on stage.

Kirti herself was on cloud nine as butterflies soared in her hair. Eight months before entering the portals of IIML, a huge neighbour hit on Kirti, almost knocking her over. "Everyone in the family felt that it was the end of the road and my dream of a high-flying career would never come true. But I decided to take the challenge head on and have got a placement with Wipro," she beamed.

Initially, there was a lot of strength, but it has all just off.

That is how a few prodigious laurels of IIML, especially when it comes to celebrating graduates

• Kirti Saxena receiving her diploma.

But I was fortunate. There were so many friends and professors who held my hand whenever I needed help. If there were will in academics, a lot of credit goes to them," she said.

Failure is inspiring, IIM students told

Prakash Nandan Singh • Lucknow

Failure is beautiful, interesting and inspiring which can take you to a high while success is boring, boring, emotional and can pull you down. But failure also has conditions as to who you are fighting against and what kind of attitude you have towards failure. These were the words of wisdom which managing director Usha Anandambhraman said to students of the IIML on the occasion of the 29th convocation on the terrace premises on Saturday. She told students that the best lessons were not learnt by Googling but by observing people.

The 29th annual convocation of Indian Institute of Management, Lucknow saw 600 students being awarded their diplomas by director Ravi K. Srivastava, Chairman and managing director of Bharatya Mahila Bank Ltd, Usha Anandambhraman was the chief guest on the occasion and delivered the convocation address.

Addressing students, she said, "When I completed my post-graduation, the teacher told me that failures were beautiful, interesting and inspiring. When he saw the puffed look on my face, he said that failures taught you lessons which success could not teach". She added that there was a difference between having a passion and a passion for excellence. She also told several inspiring stories about people who had made it to the top of their professions. "Passion for excellence is more important than passion. One has to be determined and never give up. Life is a series of setbacks and lack is seeing what other people do not see and then pursuing it," she pointed out. The managing director said that improving youth was important because they were the poorest form of renewable youth.

Chairman, Board of

Students receive their diplomas at IIML.

Director, IIML said that the IIM had currently an acting director who was reluctant to continue as the Director. "But even IIM will see a change in future," he added.

As many as 675 students from the 29th batch of post-graduate programmes in Management, 65 students from the 10th batch of post-graduate programmes in Agri Business Management, 8 students from the doctoral programme along with 40 students from post-graduate programmes in Management for Working Executives (MGE) and 67 students from international programmes in Management for Executives (IME) had also received the diploma. Speaking on the occasion, director Ravi K. Srivastava highlighted the accomplishments of the institute in the academic year 2014-2015. "There is an increased focus on research. The institute has undertaken many new low-cost, nationally-funded research projects. The institute is also moving towards getting globally accredited. The IIML accreditation is already in place and the institute is in process of getting AACSB accreditation," he said.

Srivastava told students that he was sure that they would remember and cherish the learning experience at IIM Lucknow. "During the time spent here they have gradually undergone many changes, some intellectual, some behavioural, some attitudinal. Now that they are knowledgeable, they should take care that they do not come across as Know-it-alls, confident, but take care that they should not cross the line and become arrogant. Be amiable and courteous but take care that they should not become aggressive and egomaniacal," he added.
