IIM-L, US institute to offer cert prog in biz analytics

LUCKNOW: To train students in the trade of identifying and seizing business opportunities, the Indian Institute of Management Lucknow has inked a pact with the USA's Kelley School of Business to offer a combined certificate programme in business analytics for executives.

The programme would combine business strategy, business analytical tools and applications of analytics in selected business areas, namely finance, marketing and operations.

It aims at honing the skills and mindset of participants that would in turn allow them to identify and seize business opportunities using business analytics tools.

Prof Rajiv K Srivastava, director, IIM Lucknow said, "We have received encouraging feedback for this programme. Given the demand for the programme both IIM Lucknow and Kelley School of Business, Indiana University have decided to run two batches of certificate programme in business Analytics in a year. The next batch is scheduled to begin from March 2015."

The programme would see joint teaching by faculty from IIM-Lucknow and Kelley School of Business, USA.

On campus modules would be conducted from IIM Lucknow campus. The programme consists of mandatory on campus residency requirement and rest is delivered over Internet via ANGEL course management system.

IIM-L's flash mob for road safety

Aditi Gupta | TNN

Lucknow: Over 50 students of the Indian Institute of Management, Lucknow broke into a flash mob at a mall on Kanpur road on Saturday to propagate the message of the 'Road to Safety' campaign to make Indian roads safer as also to promote their annual fair INDEX '14 to be held on November 15-16 at Moti Mahal Lawns.

Students held posters with messages like 'Never Drink and Drive', 'Slow & Steady Wins the Race', 'Fast & Speedy Kills'. They also danced to a song and attracted a lot of visitors at the shopping mall/multiplex. "We planned the flash mob dance to attract mainly students and to spread the word about INDEX," said

Shishir, a student from IIM-Lucknow.

INDEX is actually an exercise to study consumer behaviour by students of IIM-Lucknow under the garb of a fair. People are made to play games and given prizes. Games are designed on various themes and have questions which extract information from the people about their preferences for various products. As they take part in the games, people are not informed about the study or that they are the subject, hence the response is unbiased and accurate.

IIM-L'S ANNUAL FEST INDEX '14 DISGUISES RESEARCH UNDER FUN AND GAMES

Helping MSY find Akhilesh a house

Aditi Gupta/TOS

Lucknow: To know what suitable place Mulyam Singh Yadav is looking for to buy a house for his son and UP chief minister Akhilesh Yadav in, visit INDEX 2014, a disguised market research event, conducted by students of the Indian Institute of Management, Lucknow.

The two-day fair that began on Saturday also gives an opportunity to go on a date with stand-up comedian 'Guthhi'. But for this, you will have to win her heart answering certain questions and then passing through a series of tests by Dadi and Palak of the TV show Comedy Circus.

The 20th edition of INDEX had seven such games centred around real life, television and comic characters to gauge people's needs and perspectives on several products available in the market. In other events, characters like Harry Potter in 'Jaldi ki Duniya' and Amitabh Bachchan in 'Saan Bataega Chorpati' were designed to gauge people's responses about several things like real estate, favorite advertisements that keep them going. The game Big Boss judged deeds of people and accordingly sent them to heaven or hell.

Enjoying the fair, Suman Jaiswal from Govti Nagar said, "Every year, INDEX offers something new. Games designed by the students are innovative and it's fun to 'meet' famous people in a disguised form. My children love being here."

More than a fair, the event is part of the market research initiative by the students of IIM-L. It is based on the concept of 'disguised market research' — which seeks to gain insights into customers' perspective and needs through intelligently designed games to overcome the 'sensitization effect'.

"The participants are our consumers. Through their response, students identify the brand awareness, consumer needs and assess competition," said Vrutiika, one of the organizers.

She added that after the data is collected, it is evaluated by the experts. The fair was also host to events like Lucknow Idol, Footloose, Roadies and Sunburn music festival, which is based on Goa music, enthralled the audience. With impromptu events that invited people to participate on the spot, there's always something going on at the fair.

Out of the (condom) box bid for AIDS awareness & Guinness Record

Yusra Husain | TOI

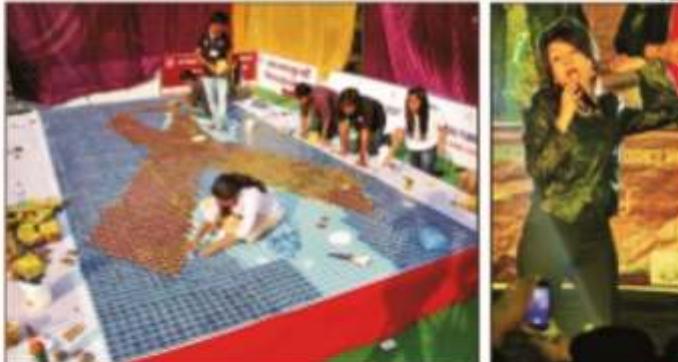

Lucknow: As red boxes of condom were arranged to form the shape of a knot against blue packets to symbolise the symbol of HIV-AIDS, volunteering students from the Indian Institute of Management, Lucknow attempted to create Guinness World Record during their annual marketing fest INDEX-2014.

Using as many as 4,418 condom boxes to create the world's largest condom mosaic, it was an attempt of IIM Lucknow in collaboration with Uttar Pradesh AIDS Control Society (UPSACS) to spread awareness about AIDS.

Under supervision of an aerial camera giving feed-back-to-Guinness authorities, IIM Lucknow students attempted to break the existing record held by AIDS control society of Hong Kong, which had used 400 condom packets in 2009.

"Uttar Pradesh is highly affected with the prevalence of AIDS, so it is our responsibility towards the society as students of IIM Lucknow to create awareness about an issue that is pertinent and prevalent," said Akashree Goyal, part of the 16 member managing committee of the fest.

Creating a mosaic of 30 feet by 20 feet, the student body attempted to bigger in their 20th edition of INDEX against the existing record of 9 feet by 3.5 feet of the AIDS sign. Opening eyes of the attendees to the marketing fair about the social milieu, the apparent conditions of un-

"The idea of the record came from students of IIM Lucknow. Our organization is fighting for the cause of AIDS awareness and we considered it an apt way to connect with the youth on the issue," said Dr. Sangeeta Pandey, joint director UPSACS.

Nukkad natak competition 'Jaagriti' was on the same theme, sensitizing people against prejudices about HIV-AIDS and giving guidelines for safe sex. As the participating students stood on each other's shoulders, making direct contact with the audience demanding their attention, pointing out the issues and rumours about AIDS, they not only entertained the audience with Their performances but also educated them about relevant HIV facts that go around the society as myths.

The declaration of the Guinness world record attempt will take 3 days for the result to be finalised while the condom boxes shall be later distributed in villages in the vicinity.

TRIBUTE: The candlelight march at IIM-L campus

IIM-L remembers brave Manjunath

Times News Network

Lucknow: A candlelight march was organised at Indian Institute of Management, Lucknow (IIM-L) campus on Wednesday in memory of Manjunath Shanmugam, who was killed fighting against corruption on November 19, 2006. A bright alumnus of IIM-L, Manjunath was a manager with Indian Oil Corporation posted in Lakhimpur, where he was shot dead by a petrol pump owner and his henchmen for objecting to adulteration of oil.

IIM students addressed the gathering giving information about the trust and its activities. A minute's silence was observed in Manjunath's memory. Students then administered the pledge of integrity to the students and rendered the national anthem.

The Manjunath Shanmugam Trust (MST) — an initiative of business school alumni across the world who have joined hands to improve governance in Indian public life — fought the case relentlessly. After a record nine-month trial, all eight accused were found guilty.

Battling the brightest of the country, six teams pre-technical bid to put down their competitors. With less investment and minimum users made use of the latest technology that required minimum foreign intervention to come up with the best idea. Lebbying their idea strongly, the teams fought to the best of their abilities for the winner's slot. For managing its financials well and working in tandem with the external environment, the team from IIM Raipur was adjudged the winner.

In the management event, 'The Next CEO', students were given a task to get themselves appointed in a company. Already under pressure, teams were asked to develop a strategy to work better. While the employer wanted to appoint people on low salary package, the job-seekers did not agree to the packages.

The event was endowed with foresight, functional expertise, confidence and the rare ability to make decisions under severe pressure.

- IIM Lucknow's Manifest-Varchasva, the annual business, cultural and sports fest, kicked off on Friday with a plethora of competitions.
- The cultural events included the much-awaited 'Lucknow beauty night' comprising of Jashn-- the institute's trademark fashion parade-- and Campus Princess, which was judged by Miss India International Zoya Afroz and presented the finalists a chance of getting a direct entry into the Mumbai round of auditions for Miss India 2015.

■ The sports events saw participants from leading institutes of the country, including IMT and IIFT sweat it out in football, basketball and cricket.

■ The evening also included a performance by Gilad Dobrovsky, a percussionist who has shared stage with musicians like Mike Stern, Toots Thielmans and Randy Becker.

Home team emerges winner with e-touch to CSR

Times News Network

Lucknow: Tie-up with multinational companies and collaborating with online e-commerce websites can add to donations. This idea won IIM Lucknow team the top prize at Yajna, the pan-India CSR corporate social responsibility challenge in association with HelpAge India. The team also suggested that television must be used to increase awareness about the importance of donation for the cause of elderly.

Students from different B-schools who qualified for Yajna finals were given a case study where they had to come up with a three-year consolidated marketing plan to make donations for well-being of elderly citizens of the society as one of the top three causes for donations. Rounding around sensitising masses to the needs of elderly care, the challenge was open to all grad-

Teams made field visits as part of the project and HelpAge India executives mentored the finalists for a week. The solution was then evaluated by veterans of HelpAge India on the parameters of creativity, feasibility and innovation.

Apart from winning the challenge, the idea given by IIM-L students would be implemented by HelpAge India.

Around 800 plus final entries were received from colleges across the country out of which five best solutions were invited. The challenge provided students with the opportunity to apply their knowledge to come up with an intelligent and implementable solution for a social cause.

Smart idea

Finals of 'The Next CEO' were held at IIM's Manfest on Sunday. Budding managers were asked to start their own venture in e-commerce. Dev Aditya of IIM Rohtak was the final. He started his service sector firm in e-commerce. His idea was to do marketing and generate funds with less effort with minimum hard work.
